I'm not in the habit of throwing compliments around, but I will when one is deserved. I've developed a new product for hunting outfitters called The Game Keeper, and the first step in marketing it was to develop a compelling and user-friendly website. Fredricks Communications did an excellent job in developing our website content. Martin took the framework of what I wanted on the site and put some meaningful and informative meat to it. He brought some real value to the process, and I was honestly impressed.
